C. I. A. Director Also Has Some Fishing Secrets

Washington Bureau
Watertown Daily Times
National Press Bldg.

CPYRG
Washington, June 10. — If the nation's top cloak-and-dagger expert ever decides to quit the intelligence game he has another jobs all picked out for himself.

Allen W. Dulles, who spent his early boyhood in northern New York, was speculating on the future the other day after a television appearance with Rep. Harold C. Ostertag, R., Attica.

Referring to his enjoyment of fishing on Lake Ontario, the Central Intelligence agency director told the congressman:

"If I decided to give up government work I know what I'd like to do. I've had such pleasant experiences up on the lake I think I could make a pretty good fishing guide."
